

Children's Chatter

One year later...

You should be proud of yourselves.
You just survived an entire year of COVID-19.

I'll be honest — this one-year anniversary is not a date I even want to think about, much less celebrate. It brings back so many bad memories and emotions, and reminds me that this virus is still a huge part of our lives.

At the same time, however, this anniversary is cause for celebration. Fun fact: The day I found out the library was going to close was also my birthday.

On the one hand, it's unfortunate that those two things happened the same day. But on the other hand, it's a good reminder why I should celebrate. Yes, it is the day the world turned upside down. But it's also the day, many years ago, I came into this crazy, beautiful world, and I sure am glad I'm still here to see it.

So go grab yourself a slice of cake. Stick a candle on it, if you want. Do it in honor of the people we've lost, and do it for yourself. Because you're still here, doing the best you can. And that is definitely worth celebrating.

All my best,

Emily

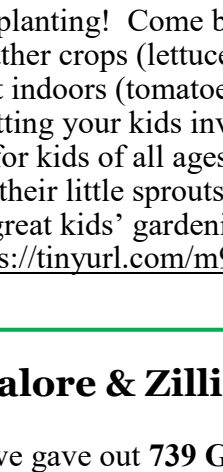

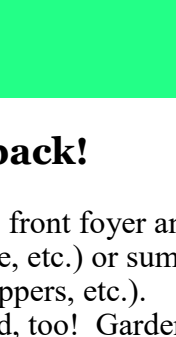

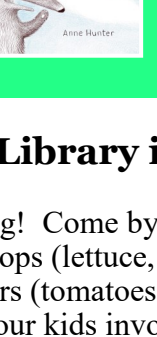

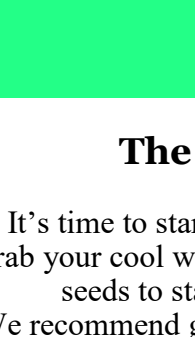

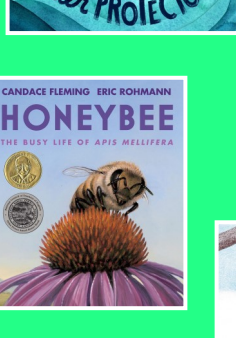

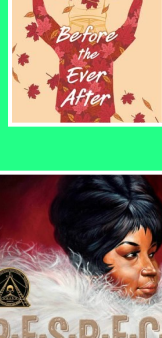

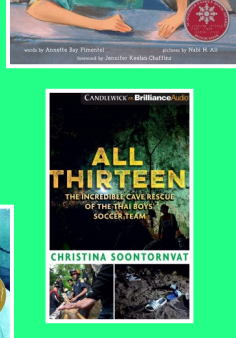

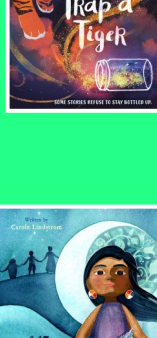

You're adapting!

Guess what? We had almost as many checkouts in January and February as we did in July when the library was open!
Thank you for being so flexible!

2021 Award-Winning Books

The Seed Library is back!

It's time to start planting! Come by the front foyer and grab your cool weather crops (lettuce, kale, etc.) or summer seeds to start indoors (tomatoes, peppers, etc.). We recommend getting your kids involved, too! Gardening is a great activity for kids of all ages. They love to play in the dirt and watch their little sprouts grow.
